

Principal consultant at informitv, Dr William Cooper advises clients on convergence media strategy and implementation. He is currently leading the development of Livestation, a global network for broadcast over broadband. Previously, as head of interactive at BBC Broadcast, he operationally managed the successful launch and delivery of online and interactive television services for the BBC.

Get connected with expert advice, strategic consultancy and practical implementation from informitv. Supported by an international network of industry specialists, informitv provides confidential consultancy services worldwide. Find out more from our web site and get a free subscription to the informitv news service.

informitv.com